RIPPLE EFFECT
It starts on an African farm

"A lot has changed, before we had no garden where we could grow enough vegetables. Currently we have improved it, you can understand that the lessons have been useful." Eric

Meet Eric and Aline

Eric (17) and Aline (11) live with their family in the Ngoma District of Rwanda. Before working alongside Ripple Effect, their family's land was unproductive and sourcing enough nutritious food was a daily challenge. But with training and support, they have transformed their farm—diversifying crops and boosting yields. Today, they can now grow enough food for the family and for market.

Eric plays an active role, helping to build the family's kitchen garden by preparing the ground, planting seeds, and watering the garden. He especially enjoys growing green peppers and carrots alongside caring for the family's animals.

Aline shared her experience:

'I enjoy that when I come from school I eat food. Ripple Effect has helped build small vegetable gardens where we grow vegetables and more, I'm motivated to work and study at my best'

By twinning a garden, you contribute to our work with farmers in rural Africa. Your donation will fund three years of sustainable agriculture training for at least one family, like Eric and Aline's. Starting with small kitchen gardens, families can grow enough to eat, set up small businesses, send their children to school and go after their dreams.
